

THE NEWS.

PERSONAL. JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL conveys, through Secretary Fish, his thanks to the President for the honor of the order on the position of Minister to St. Petersburg...

MAJOR HAYMEYER, of New York, died of apoplexy on the 30th ult. His term of office expired the day of his death.

Rev. GEORGE D. GILLESPIE, of Ann Arbor, Mich., has been chosen Bishop of the new Episcopal Diocese of Western Michigan.

W. F. STORER, of the Chicago Times, has just published a little book being Mrs. Eureka C. Pearson, of Chicago.

A NEW ORLEANS telegram states that Gov. Kellogg is quietly disposing of his property in that city.

GENERAL. A WASHINGTON telegram states that the first summary made of the estimates for the coming year fixed the reductions over last year at about $10,000,000.

MEMBERS of the House Appropriation Committee, says a Washington dispatch, state that all the regular appropriation bills, except the Sundry Civil, are completed.

A MAN named Walter Strain, of Buffalo, has been returned from the Black Hills, where he has been prospecting since August.

The National Board of Fire Insurance Companies, which became alarmed and withdrew from Chicago immediately after the big July fire, have decided to resume business in that city.

The negroes of Central Alabama are making arrangements for a wholesale emigration to States where the blacks are in the preponderance.

The United Grand Lodge of colored Masons has held its annual session at New York. Sixteen subordinate lodges were represented.

The National Chess Transportation Convention, previous to adjourning at Richmond, adopted a memorial to Congress, favoring the building of a ship-yard in the East and a steamship yard at New York.

This full bench of Judges in Washington has decided that the late grand jury which indicted the safe burglars was illegally convened, and therefore all its indictments are void.

CHINESE AND CRIMINALS. It is stated that an amnesty bill in behalf of the James and Younger boys will be introduced in the Missouri Legislature at the next session.

A HORRIBLE tragedy was recently enacted in Hamilton county, N. Y. A carpenter named Elias Williams, who was erecting a frame house, hired one George Smith to assist him.

RAILROAD INTELLIGENCE. The effects of some of the Western railroad managers to stop the issue of free passes has again fallen through on account of the refusal of the Illinois Central railroad to enter into the compact.

FIRES AND CASUALTIES. The steamer La Plata, which was chartered by the cable company to repair the ocean cable, lumbered off the coast of France on the 20th of November, and after six days was lost.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL. A financial agent of the Treasury Department has just returned from Europe, and reports that the syndicate will shortly take all that remains of the new five per cent. loan, a hundred millions or thereabout.

It is generally conceded at Washington that there will be no financial legislation accomplished by Congress this winter.

THE CONCERN (N. H.) Savings Bank has suspended.

NEARLY all the iron mills in the Pittsburgh region have decided to cease work.

MR. SENEX, of Virginia, will offer a bill in Congress, regulating the printing of election ballots in the South.

to enter upon the work of returning to a specie basis, and that the Treasury cannot too strongly urge the adoption of the measures he has indicated.

In connection with this subject the Secretary deems it proper to suggest, for the consideration of Congress, the following plan for the most rigid economy in the public expenditures.

The length of time that has now elapsed since the final overthrow of the rebellion, as well as proper regard for the faith of the nation, demands that the public debt should be redeemed in full as early as possible.

The country like ours, with varied industries and extensive commercial relations among its different sections and with other nations, is indispensable to the general prosperity.

Credit, which necessarily enters largely into commercial transactions, can only be steady and secure when it has for its foundation a stable currency.

The quality of the money in circulation, which, by common consent of mankind, is the medium of exchange, and is a paper currency, is of the highest importance.

The history of irredeemable paper currency repeats itself whenever and wherever it is issued, and the history of the present is a warning to the future.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

to enter upon the work of returning to a specie basis, and that the Treasury cannot too strongly urge the adoption of the measures he has indicated.

In connection with this subject the Secretary deems it proper to suggest, for the consideration of Congress, the following plan for the most rigid economy in the public expenditures.

The length of time that has now elapsed since the final overthrow of the rebellion, as well as proper regard for the faith of the nation, demands that the public debt should be redeemed in full as early as possible.

The country like ours, with varied industries and extensive commercial relations among its different sections and with other nations, is indispensable to the general prosperity.

Credit, which necessarily enters largely into commercial transactions, can only be steady and secure when it has for its foundation a stable currency.

The quality of the money in circulation, which, by common consent of mankind, is the medium of exchange, and is a paper currency, is of the highest importance.

The history of irredeemable paper currency repeats itself whenever and wherever it is issued, and the history of the present is a warning to the future.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

to enter upon the work of returning to a specie basis, and that the Treasury cannot too strongly urge the adoption of the measures he has indicated.

In connection with this subject the Secretary deems it proper to suggest, for the consideration of Congress, the following plan for the most rigid economy in the public expenditures.

The length of time that has now elapsed since the final overthrow of the rebellion, as well as proper regard for the faith of the nation, demands that the public debt should be redeemed in full as early as possible.

The country like ours, with varied industries and extensive commercial relations among its different sections and with other nations, is indispensable to the general prosperity.

Credit, which necessarily enters largely into commercial transactions, can only be steady and secure when it has for its foundation a stable currency.

The quality of the money in circulation, which, by common consent of mankind, is the medium of exchange, and is a paper currency, is of the highest importance.

The history of irredeemable paper currency repeats itself whenever and wherever it is issued, and the history of the present is a warning to the future.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

to enter upon the work of returning to a specie basis, and that the Treasury cannot too strongly urge the adoption of the measures he has indicated.

In connection with this subject the Secretary deems it proper to suggest, for the consideration of Congress, the following plan for the most rigid economy in the public expenditures.

The length of time that has now elapsed since the final overthrow of the rebellion, as well as proper regard for the faith of the nation, demands that the public debt should be redeemed in full as early as possible.

The country like ours, with varied industries and extensive commercial relations among its different sections and with other nations, is indispensable to the general prosperity.

Credit, which necessarily enters largely into commercial transactions, can only be steady and secure when it has for its foundation a stable currency.

The quality of the money in circulation, which, by common consent of mankind, is the medium of exchange, and is a paper currency, is of the highest importance.

The history of irredeemable paper currency repeats itself whenever and wherever it is issued, and the history of the present is a warning to the future.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

to enter upon the work of returning to a specie basis, and that the Treasury cannot too strongly urge the adoption of the measures he has indicated.

In connection with this subject the Secretary deems it proper to suggest, for the consideration of Congress, the following plan for the most rigid economy in the public expenditures.

The length of time that has now elapsed since the final overthrow of the rebellion, as well as proper regard for the faith of the nation, demands that the public debt should be redeemed in full as early as possible.

The country like ours, with varied industries and extensive commercial relations among its different sections and with other nations, is indispensable to the general prosperity.

Credit, which necessarily enters largely into commercial transactions, can only be steady and secure when it has for its foundation a stable currency.

The quality of the money in circulation, which, by common consent of mankind, is the medium of exchange, and is a paper currency, is of the highest importance.

The history of irredeemable paper currency repeats itself whenever and wherever it is issued, and the history of the present is a warning to the future.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of domestic merchandise, $569,421,610; Imports of domestic merchandise, $1,896,612,340.

to enter upon the work of returning to a specie basis, and that the Treasury cannot too strongly urge the adoption of the measures he has indicated.

In connection with this subject the Secretary deems it proper to suggest, for the consideration of Congress, the following plan for the most rigid economy in the public expenditures.

The length of time that has now elapsed since the final overthrow of the rebellion, as well as proper regard for the faith of the nation, demands that the public debt should be redeemed in full as early as possible.

The country like ours, with varied industries and extensive commercial relations among its different sections and with other nations, is indispensable to the general prosperity.

Credit, which necessarily enters largely into commercial transactions, can only be steady and secure when it has for its foundation a stable currency.

The quality of the money in circulation, which, by common consent of mankind, is the medium of exchange, and is a paper currency, is of the highest importance.

The history of irredeemable paper currency repeats itself whenever and wherever it is issued, and the history of the present is a warning to the future.

The comparative coin value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

Exports of specie and bullion, $68,820,000; Imports of specie and bullion, $28,450,000.

The decrease in the value of the exports and imports of the United States, from 1873 to 1874, is as follows:

</