The heavy ears fall bowing down,
And nestle at their feet,
Such will, such work as theirs perforce

So careless of fatigue they go,
So true, so steadily,
The admiring traveler on the road
Leans o'er the gate to see;
With marvel of the soon-fallen breadth,
The lounging gossips tedl;
But the respers labor for us all;
'Tis need they should work well.

Ere the great sun that burns above
Shall crimson in the west,
And the childrens' poppy nosegays fade,
And they lie down to rost,
Each golden spear that upward points
Shall fall upon the field,
And the farmer drain a sparkling glass,
Rejoicing o'er the yield.

Ply, bonny men, your sickles bright,
And give the people bread!
At every conquering stride you take,
On want and woe you fread.
Drop, heavy ears, and give the strength
You gathered from this plain,
That man may rise refreshed and firm,
And do great things again.

That guide the cleaving plow,
That cast abroad the shining seed,
And build the wealthy mow;
They rear the bread our children eat;
This by their toil we five;
Hurrah! give them the loudest cheer
That grateful hearts can give!

-St. Nicholas for October closes the second volume of this charming magazine, and brings to its readers some thirty interesting articles, the majority of them beautifully illustrated Granville Perkins, representing a battle at sea between the American frigate, Essex, and an English ship, Phœbe, during the war of 1812, which contest is also described in the opening article. Following close upon this is the very natural, as well as amusing, story by Mrs. Sarah Winter Kellogg, under the title of How as we discover it to be, to the manner in which a winter's earnings glided from the hands and pockets of two merry youngsters. Descriptive articles, also, are not lacking, and if the young reader prefer solid information to fiction, he will find something to his taste in the well illustrated descriptions of The Frigate-Bird, and of a hunt for horses on the western plains.

THE article of most importance in the Magazines for October is that contributed to Harof Mr. Miller's death, the boy satunmoved and | I. Hubbard will take a post graduate course | pers' by D. Theo D. Woolsey on The Experiment of the Union, with its Preparations. The gentlemen are happily married: Messrs, W. article is full of compressed and valuable thought. The effect of Dr. Woolsey's teachings is greatly enhanced by the pruning which his words undergo. There is something peculiarly fine in the conservative language he employs. Of this the following is an example "If forty members of a political party, were found to have taken bribes and were expelled, it would be better for the country or State than if five were detected and two hundred were under suspicion, although the suspicion might be wholly groundless; for a general distrust of men in public stations is most disheartening and demoralizing. Unjust doubt of human character in general destroys the motives to probity arising from example, if it be not already the fruit of a corrupt heart." Mr. M.D. Conway has an illustrated article on the South Kensington Museum. Irenus H. Browne has sketches of four famous Paris journalists. There are some good stories in the Drawer.
