ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1875.

NUMBER 1552.

A WEE PHILOSOPHER. As dawn peeped, one Sabbath morn, I walked at rapid rate, Through the woods, and through the shade, I felt a little bit of awe, As I saw the sun's rays glancing on the grass, And the birds were singing in the trees.

One evening as twilight was dusk, I was walking through the woods, And I saw a dog coming out from his hole, And I saw a dog coming out from his hole.

There had been trouble upon Farmer Welton's place. Dogs had been killing his sheep—and some of the very best, at that. He had declared, in his wrath, that he would shoot the first stray dog he found prowling about his premises.

Mr. Brackett arrived just as the dog barked. He was one of the older boys, and he was a man of a hearty nature. He had grown quite dark now, and the farmer saw what had happened.

"I am sorry, John. O, how Mrs. Brackett and the children will feel, they set everything by old Carlo. But you can explain it." "Yes—I can explain it."

Half an hour later Mr. Welton was going to his barn with a lighted lantern in his hand. He was thinking of the recent unfortunate occurrence, and was sorely worried and perplexed.

Now there may be a volume of electric influence even in the stamp of a foot, and there was such an influence in the stamp which Brackett gave, and Welton felt it, and braced himself against it.

"I wonder," he said to himself, "how the trial will come out. I suppose Welton will hire old Whitman to take his case. Of course the office will be crowded. Tom Fry says he has a good lawyer, and that everybody will be there. Plague take it! I wish—"

His meditations were interrupted by approaching steps, and on looking up he beheld neighbor Welton. "Good morning, Peter," he said, "and how are you?" "Brackett gapped, and finally answered: 'Good morning,' though rather crustily. Welton went on, frankly and pleasantly, and he would go to the village to-day."

OCEAN TELEGRAPHY.

How Messages are Sent and Received Under the Sea. He (the ocean telegraph operator), says in the Boston Herald, says the "key" is a hand telegraph, only it is a double key, and it is made of brass, and is made of one.

A narrow horizontal scale is placed within a wooden frame, and is placed in front of the mirror, a narrow slit being cut in the center of the scale to allow a ray of light to shine upon the mirror from a lamp placed behind said scale.

Execution of an Obituary. Galveston, Texas, (Oct. 5) correspondence of the St. Louis Globe: "The Galveston papers of to-day contain details of the execution of Mitchell for the murder of two men named Truff in Hood county, and the death of Jeff Mitchell, who was trying to convey property to his father in jail. Mitchell, who is a man of eighty years of age, made several attempts to commit suicide on Wednesday night by hanging himself with a chain he had wrenched from the door, but his heart failed him. He spent the night in cursing the Sheriff and the warden, and on Thursday night a guard was placed in his cell to prevent self-destruction. On Thursday night the guard about the jail discovered an armed man crawling toward the jail, and not knowing how to proceed, there lighted a fire in the morning, the lighted body of Jeff Mitchell, youngest son of the doomed man, aged about twenty-one, was found on the ground, the whole top of his head blown off. He was armed with a double-barreled gun, and had a brace of Colt's revolvers hidden around him, and all heavily loaded. In his pocket was found a large vial of laudanum, wrapped with rags, which he was trying to convey to his father. The old man, however, was not allowed to be brought into the jail, that he might see his son, and was much affected. Near by his horse was hatched, his hat and shoes tied to the saddle. The execution was witnessed by a large number of people after 1 o'clock the wagon, containing the doomed man seated on his coffin, proceeded to the gallows, the rope was tied, and the execution gone through with."

Mutiny and Piracy. The Atlantic cable some months ago briefly mentioned a remarkable case of mutiny and piracy on the high seas. A vessel called the Jefferson Borden was making a voyage from New Orleans to London, having on board besides the Captain and mate, five sailors and a boy, with the Captain's wife as passenger. On the 20th of April, while in mid-ocean 900 miles from England, the vessel was suddenly surrounded by a large number of men, both armed and unarmed, and an attempt made to decoy the Captain from the cabin where he was sleeping, which was, however, frustrated by the timely entry of his wife, who was suspected foul play. The Captain then armed himself and gave battle to the mutineers. He had for allies one sailor, the steward, his wife and the cabin boy. The battle waged with varying fortunes for about forty-eight hours. At last the Captain by dint of bravery and skillful tactics succeeded in driving the three mutineers into the forenoon, where they finally surrendered, overcome by hunger, fatigue and wounds. The vessel was taken into an English port, and in due time returned to Boston with the mutineers in custody. They were indicted for piracy, and committed to the State Prison at New Haven, Conn., where they were held for a time under medical care, abstaining entirely from labor. The Doctor thinks that his patient will in a short INDIANOLA.

The account of the ruin of Indianola, Texas, reads almost like a narrative of fiction. It is a city of more than two thousand inhabitants, men may well be astonished to learn that the city of Galveston county, Texas, and is situated on the western shore of Matagorda Bay, about 120 miles to the southwest of Galveston.

Also I forged my father's and father-in-law's name to a note for $4,000, payable to the National Bank of Cambridge, Mass., and there got Marion Forgy to sign it, and placed it in line of one that I had forged for the amount of $100, and gave security for it. Thomas Wood, and father-in-law, W. L. Garriatt, furthermore, had found for a long time past that my father was becoming more and more unwell, and I, not wanting to disturb him on my account, had forged his name for the last two years, and was determined to pass through the hands of two years ago, and pay every creditor that I owed a cent in the world, little over thought that interest and failures of different debtors would so embarrass me that I should come to this end, that I am now about to launch my life into a London voyage.

English Jargon. Col. J. W. Foster comes to the rescue of Americans who are ridiculed by Englishmen for their nasal twang. He writes in one of his London letters: "Let me add at the start that there is nothing more delightful to me than the nasal twang of an educated Englishman."

Concerning Postal Cards. The first of the old issue of cards were sent to the Springfield postoffice May 12, 1875, and the last to Meriden, Conn., last Tuesday. Between these two dates, 255,478,000 cards have been issued, for which the government has paid the contractors $357,949.85, and have collected $2,554,780 from the people.

Rapid Transit in New York. For a long time the people of New York have been agitating the subject of rapid transit. Various schemes have been proposed looking to the attainment of that desideratum, but each had its defects and its drawbacks. The project of the eminent architect and leading business men of New York, was appointed to invite proposals and inspect plans for the proposed rapid transit road, over the center of the city, and on posts placed in the roadway, just spanning the horse-car tracks, or supported on Gothic arches spanning the street from curb to curb, according to plans presented by Richard P. Maynard, of Bloomington, Ill. It is probable that one of these plans will be adopted, and that ere long the great city of New York will be traversed by a network of elevated railways.

MICHIGAN NEWS.

A Mr. GRAHAM accidentally killed himself while hunting near Yorkville last week. WORK on the Chicago, Saginaw and Canadian railroad is progressing favorably. THE State Prison at Jackson has now 787 convicts—the largest number ever confined there.

KENT county Grangers have opened a general store at Grand Rapids, with a capital of $60,000. EX-AUDITOR-GENERAL HUMPHREY has accepted the position of Warden of the Jackson State Prison, tendered him by Gov. Bagley.

EDWARD BARRIOS, a freight conductor on the Detroit and Bay City railroad, was killed by the cars at Columbiaville last Thursday. DANIEL HARMONSON, who was accused of killing his wife last spring, has lately been found drowned in the well in his own cellar, at Red Jacket.

THE Lowell Journal says Mrs. Ruby Jones, of Chicago, and Mrs. Ruby Temple, of Nebraska, are visiting Mrs. Ruby Sunderland, in Lowell, whose little daughter's name is Ruby. E. J. STERLINGS, of Marquette, aged 50 years, has been held in bonds of $1,000 to answer in the Circuit Court in the charge of ravishing a little girl of 12 years. The details of the affair are peculiarly disgusting. JOHN MOSES has resigned the position of Warden of the State Prison and William Humphrey, of Lansing, ex-Auditor-General and well known as a gentleman of fine executive talent, has been appointed and has accepted.

THE death of Miss King at the burning of the Herndon Hotel at Marshall is ascribed to an overwhelming feeling of modesty, which prevented her in her unclad condition from stepping upon a ladder upon which a fireman stood waiting to rescue her. A SMOKE alarm is being made by the friends of Hillsdale College to erect the fourth building of the group, which is to be a building 52x75 feet, three stories high. It is to be occupied by the commercial and telegraph departments, and also to be used as a dormitory for the gentlemen.

GEORGE WILLIAMS and Dave Kelley two rogues of Eaton Rapids, managed in some way to procure blank telegraphic letter heads and envelopes, filled them out, addressed them to various farmers, and delivered them at the rate of $2 to $3 each. Kelley is now under arrest, but Williams has managed to elude the officers. WALTER B. HILL, of Battle Creek, who was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Barber in Grand Rapids about three weeks since for forgery, was arraigned for examination before Judge Wadleigh last Friday, and in default of $800 bail was committed to the County Jail in Marshall to await trial at the November term of the Circuit Court.

We shall give our readers portions of it next week.

GOSSIP OF THE DAY.

GRAND ADJUTANT TOWNSEND is authority for the statement that Mr. Abell, of the Baltimore Sun, is the richest newspaper publisher in America, not excepting Bennett or Childs.

MR. J. H. NICOLAY, who was for some years private secretary of Abraham Lincoln, is writing a life of the late President. He claims that it will contain more extended and authentic details of Mr. Lincoln's life than have heretofore been published.

CAR ENGINEER WOOD, U. S. N., has filed a caveat on an invention, consisting of a power derived by the agency of carbonic acid gas obtained by means of electricity and galvanism. Wood claims there are great possibilities in his motive power.

VICE-PRESIDENT WILSON has been counseled by his medical advisers to abandon his intention to lecture this season, as it would prove too serious a strain on his constitution if undertaken in addition to his official duties and the completion of his book.

It has been proposed to put a stop to body-snatching by interfering with the corpse a quantity of some explosive material, such as nitro-glycerine, darning or the like. The general adoption of this plan would make it unprofitable for intruder companies who take risks on the lives of medical students and resurrectionists.

DR. LINDBERG, Director of the Mint Bureau, is now perfecting measures for the coinage of silver pieces to take the place of the fractional currency now in circulation. It is a big job, and will require 120,000,000 dimes, 40,000,000 quarters, and 30,000,000 half dollars to replace the notes of these denominations. It will take about two years to coin the 120,000,000 dimes, unless all other work is suspended at the mint.

CAPT. WAIN, the marvelous swimmer who lately crossed the English channel by a sheer exercise of muscle, has been examined by a distinguished surgeon, who reports the results in the Lancet. The Captain is said to be 5 feet 8 inches in height; weight, 208 pounds; chest-measure, 41 inches; biceps, 13 1/2 inches; forearm, 11 1/2 inches. One remarkable development is his weight, which is extraordinary for an athlete, and shows, as the surgeon says, the presence of considerable other tissue beside muscle.

MR. MINKER, one of the two St. Louis lawyers who recently fought a bloodless duel, writes a ferocious card to one of the local papers in which he denies that he had a pair of slippers in his damnable breast to protect him from bullets, and adds: "On the occasion of the duel between me and Grismore I bared my bosom and received his fire without flinching, as any man would do who is as brave as the point of a sword. Grismore, on the contrary, thought himself dead, and had to be strapped out by copious draughts of crooked whisky."

WE are to have a royal visitor next year, who will be heartily welcomed—Dom Pedro II, Emperor of Brazil, who has secured the sanction of his Chamber of Deputies to a proposed absence of eighteen months in Europe and the United States, taking in the Philadelphia centennial, of course. Dom Pedro has proved himself the most intelligent ruler that South America has ever seen, and Brazil has made steady and rapid progress through his reign. He has always shown himself a warm friend of the United States, and a very hearty respect for the man has grown up on our part.

The funds of placing loaded fire-arms in the hands of fools received a sad illustration at Beaver Dam, Wis., the other day. A young man, living with a farmer named Allen, took a musket and started for a neighboring farm to secure a job of threshing. As he entered the house on his return he playfully pointed his gun at Miss Allen, saying, "I will shoot you." The gun was fired, the contents entering her body above the left lung, making an opening large enough to admit a man's fist, resulting in instant death. Miss Allen was 23 years old and a very estimable young lady. It is a pity there is no law by which such lunatics can be punished.

SEVERAL years ago Gen. McClellan was appointed Chief Engineer of the Dock Department of New York city, and he began the construction of a system by driving piles and placing thereon heavy rocks. In 1873 McClellan resigned, and was succeeded by Gen. Chas. K. Graham, who made material alterations in the plans of McClellan, and a recent examination has shown that the docks built by Graham are practically worthless. Work has been discontinued in consequence. The Dock Commissioners were originally authorized to spend $3,000,000 annually in the construction of these works, which sum, it is now asserted, would have been practically wasted.

THIRTY-ONE years ago Albert Hall, a traveling salesman of New York city, deserted his wife and two children, and nothing was afterward learned of him until a few weeks since, when he called on his former wife in a very cavalier manner, to find that after a lapse of ten years she had married a second time, and to a more constant spouse. One of the children he had abandoned was yet living, and the father of four children, Hall, Sr., gave no account of his wanderings, save to say that he had done a little of everything except drinking and getting married. After tarrying a few days in the neighborhood of his old home he departed in a mysterious manner, without notice and without farewell.

Now that the treaty negotiations for the purchase or lease of the Black Hills country have failed, the question naturally arises, What is the government going to do about it? It is bound by the terms of the treaty of 1869 to keep the whites out of the Sioux reservation, which is reserved exclusively for Indian occupation. Will it act in good faith, an drive out the miners who are already digging for gold in the vicinity of Har-ney's Peak, and keep all others out, or will it permit the frontier adventurers to violate the treaty and precipitate a border war? It is quite probable that the government will be powerless to prevent emigration to that section entirely, but it can, to a great extent, keep the terms of the covenant intact.

The long and shocking catalogue of fiendish murders recorded in the criminal annals of this country furnish no parallel to the tragedy recently enacted at Pembroke, in the State of New Hampshire. The details of the horror sound more like the creation of a vivid imagination than actual, living occurrences, and as we read them it seems almost impossible of belief that there could exist a being born of woman capable of such a foul and unnatural deed. The victim of this murder—Miss Josie Longmaid, a pretty and accomplished girl of 17 years, and as we are told, a general favorite in the community—left the home of her father in the morning, as was her wont, to attend the Pembroke Academy, a mile and a half distant, but it appears she never reached her destination. Failing to return, as usual, in the evening, search was instituted, and her headless body was found in a clump of bushes near the roadside, shockingly mutilated, and her clothing torn to shreds and saturated with blood. A few feet from the body was the hat, neatly trimmed with flowers, which the murdered girl had worn. The lining on the right side of the hat had two large stains of blood, which seem to indicate that she had been struck and wounded on the head. The next morning a large party continued the search for the head, which was found about seventy-five rods from where the body had lain, in the same piece of woods. Near by lay an oak stick stained with blood, with which the poor girl had evidently been clubbed to death. The head, when found, was wrapped in the water-proof cloak which Miss Longmaid had worn when starting for school. The head had been cut off clearly off, as if severed by a sharp instrument, and physicians who examined the remains are unanimous in the opinion that decapitation was performed before life was extinct. She might have been unconscious, or partly so, when the villain put the murderous knife to her throat. This conclusion is arrived at because of the profuse evidence of her having bled freely.

SOME weeks ago Joseph Crews, a prominent Republican politician, and an opponent of Gov. Chamberlain, was killed by unknown assassins in South Carolina. Several colored men now come forward with affidavits implicating Gov. Chamberlain and State Treasurer Cardozo in the murder. The friends of the latter repel the charges and denounce the affidavits as perjured and conspiratorial. Dr. Sears, the general agent of the Peabody educational fund, reports that the public schools of the South are constantly improving in character and improving in number.

A DIFFICULTY occurred last week in Charleston, Talahatchie county, Miss., between a colored man named Blackwell and a white man named Blackwell. Blackwell was abusing Alcorn and other Republican leaders, and was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Stewart. After being arrested, Blackwell shot George Wall, a white man, dead, and was then pursued by the Sheriff and hauled up in a back room of a grocery store and shot by the Sheriff, resulting in the death of Blackwell. The body of Blackwell was found in a back room of a grocery store and shot by the Sheriff, resulting in the death of Blackwell.

FROM THE NORTH BRANCH OF THE ST. LOUIS, Kansas City, and Northern, Mo., Salt Lake, dispatch reports the discovery of rich gold diggings in the Sweetwater and Big Horn mountains. Capt. Bogardus, the famous pigeon-shooter, was arrested at St. Louis one last week, at the instance of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, on a charge of a match race that city. Mr. John McCullough, one of the few really great actors on the American stage, is playing an engagement at crowded houses at McVicker's Theater, in Chicago.

THE MASON & HAMILTON ORGAN CO. have obtained another triumph over all their competitors, and won the honor for America. They have just been awarded the grand medal of honor for the best cabinet or parlor organ, at the World's Exposition in Linz, the capital of Upper Austria.

Many valuable horses die from the effects of cold. The best thing to do is a course of this kind is to pour a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment into a long-necked junk bottle, add half pint of molasses and water, then pour the whole down the horse's throat, in ten minutes the horse will begin to eat.
