By-and-by, there was a sudden shout; a loud "tally-ho," as if the huntsman had sighted his quarry. It came from the right. Nothing but an unwarrantable amount of liquor could have influenced them to conduct themselves as they did and to make this noise. The probability was that not a soul (save the one fancied they were pursuing) was within miles and miles, but men bound on these raids are cautious. No sooner was the noise heard than my driver came to a halt. Listening for a moment, he threw the reins across the horse, leaped down, and started off towards his friends from the coffin to the ground. A few lightning-like strokes, and I had severed the traces and the rude bands of the harness.

The whole scene is vividly pictured in my mind now. The moon-lighted prairie, the sloping ravine towards which the renegades had been dashing, and the wagon standing in the trail. I mounted one of the horses and urged him onward. All might have been well, had not the quick ears of the men caught the echo of his footsteps. Looking round, they saw me making off-and I think must have known me, for I was lighted up by the bright moonlight. With a wild shout, they came on in pursuit. There was the sharp report of two rifles. I felt a sting n my foot, another in my shoulder; but the horse was unharmed, and the race for life began.

There was one disheartening disadwas riding for my life, and I held my steed between my knees, and took the broad trail with the fury of a tornado. horses. I knew nothing of the one which side, Lerdo and Iglesias, having fled the country, those having fixed interests are orced to acquiesce in Diaz' rule. Officers who, like Machorro, cannot conscienously join that movement can only leave the country, not wishing to prolong what would only be a guerrilla warfare. Diaz, being at the head of the only organized force controlling the army, is for the present supreme, but it is not believed his grasp can be held for more than a few months. Some patriotic men of great influence are still relied upon or the future. Senor Ballerta, formerly Governor of Galisco, and Gen. When son-in-law Hale is made a cabinet officer, and himself provided for, will be time enough to dispense with a personal organ.

SENATOR EDMUNDS thought it better to make his calling and re-election sure than to call in question the acts of that Louisiana Returning Board, and so he swallowed these pregnant words of his, "The liberties of a State would be in a jeint resolutions, read twice by title "rather hopeless chaos, if you take a "hundred years to come, if the deter-" mination of who have been elected by " the people to be their rulers is to be "confided to the discretion of any se-"lected body of men whatever," and so he gave his vote in Commission and Senate to cover up fraud and cheat a State out of its voice and the nation out a legitimately elected President. His motto is not "It is better to be right than to be Senator."

"THE MEMBERS of the Louisiana Returning Board are thrust into a damp, dark, hole in the cellar of the Capitol : that is the daily wail of the Republican journals sent up in behalf of the contemptuous Wells, Anderson & Co., held by the House for refusing to produce the official papers which would disclose how they patched up the parish and precinct returns and stole the electoral vote of a State. Yet these political conspirators, tools of greater and shrewder conspirators at Washington, are confined in the same room that witnesses held by the House for contempt have been confined in session after session. Another illustration of the old proverb, "No rogue e'er felt the halter draw with good opinion of the law;" or of that other one, "Curses, like chickens, come home to roost;" or of that scriptural denunciation, "With what measure ye mete to others it shall be measured to you again."

Now, suppose we state it in this way: "If the Returning Board can go behind the ballot boxes and precinct returns, and either reject the votes of the people or libelle change such votes, the State would never elect another governor or another electoral college, but the self-perpetuating Returning Board will elect whomsoever it may please." MR. EDITOR: In your last issue I noticed a proposition of Joe T. Jacobs to pay five hundred dollars, in a company of fifty individuals to the Toledo, Ann Arbor & Northern Railroad, when the same is actually running from Toledo to this city. This is, apparently, a very generous and, perhaps, a very safe proposition. My idea of its importance to the city of Ann Arbor and surrounding country is such that I will be one of fifty, or any less number, to give the above sum whenever the road is in opera-

He said in the election of 1872 the vote of Louisiana had been rejected because the law, and they now proposed to show the law had not been complied with in the present case. A popular majority had been returned in one way, and that majority had been returned in one way, and that majority had been returned in one way, and that majority had been returned in one way, and that majority had been returned by this board, through actual fraud. They had thrown aside the returns sent them by the proper officers, and had taken the reports of the Supervisors of Registration in their place, but even this they did not follow at all times. The people of sixty-nine polls had been disfranchised Mr. McDonald maintained that the commission had the right, and it was their duty, to consider the information in possession of the two houses, Their duties were judicial, not merely clerical, and he conjured them to carefully weigh the evidence in the passassion of the two houses. Europe has passed both houses of Congress. It requires that one cable shall be in operating condition within three years; that the rate of transmission shall be one shilling, British currency, per word, and that there shall be no amalgamation with or sale of the line to any other cable company.

He was followed by E. W. Stoughton on the Republican side, who argued that the Returning Board was a legal body, and had power to apportion the vote and finally certify it. It seemed to him that the decision of the commission in the Florida case determined the entire question here raised as to the right of it. It seemed to him that the decision of the commission in the Florida case determined the commission to go behind the action of the Returning Board, and he could not perceive that any question (much less the main question) was now open for argument. In conclusion he said: "Talk to me about outrage, frands and disfranchisement of voters. There are two sides of the question, and if you sit here to go back and canvass votes, you sit here to administer the laws of Louisiana, and you demanded a mode of resistance much more effective than armed demonstration. Unless Chamberlain toold compel the collection of taxes, it would be utterly useless for him to expect to maintain his authority for any length of time. This state of affairs must inevitably result in the abandonment of all efforts by Chamberlain to maintain himself in the exercise of the gubernatorial functions of South Carolina. Upon returning, the President pro tem, said that objection having been made to the decision on the vote of Louisiana, the two houses separated to deliberate in regard to that decision, and, unless some Senator asked it, he would not direct the decision and objections thereto read again. The objections were then read. Mr. Sherman submitted a resolution that the decision of the commission stand as the judgment of the Senate. Mr. Kernan offered a substitute, to the effect that the votes purporting to be the Hayes electoral votes from Louisians be not counted. After a long debate the substitute of Mr. Kernan was rejected, and the resolution of Mr. Sherman was then adopted by a strict party vote—41 to 28.

Tribunal.

The decision of the Electoral Commission in the case of Louisiana is in language about the same as in that of Florida, It reads as follows: The brief ground of this decision is, that it appears, upon such evidence as by the constitution and law named in said act of Congress (Electoral law) is competent and pe tinent to the consideration of the subject, that the before-mentioned electors appear to have been lawfully appointed such electors of President and Vice President of the United States for the term beginning March 4, 1877, of the State of Louisiana, and that they voted as such at the time and in the manner provided for by the tion of said returning officers was not in accordance with the truth and fact—the commisordance with the truth and fact—the commis-ion, by a majority of votes, being of the pinion that it is not within the jurisdiction of the two houses of Congress assembled to count he vote for President and Vice President, to the vote for President and Vice President, to enter upon the trial of such question.

The commission, by a majority, of votes, is also of the opinion that it is not competent to prove that any of said persons, so appointed electors, as aforesaid, held office of trust or profit under the United States at the time they trust or It is probable that he was out of his were appointed, or that they were ineligible un-der the laws of the State, or any other matter offered to be proved aliunde by said certificates and papers.

The commission is also of the opinion, by anajority of votes, that the returning officers of elections who canvassed the votes at the election for electors in Louisiana were a lawfully-constituted body by virtue of constitutional law, and that a vacancy in said body did not vitiate its constitution. The Dangerous and Terrible Quail.

and that a vacancy in said body did not vitiate its proceedings.

The commission has also decided, and does hereby decide, by a majority of votes, and report as the consequence of the foregoing, and upon the ground before stated, that the paper purporting to be that certificate of the electoral vote of said State of Louisiana, objected to by T. O. Howe and others, marked N. C. No. 2 by the commission, and herewith returned, is not a certificate of votes provided by the constitution of the United States, and that they ought not the Indiana Legislature for constitution of the United States, and that they ought not the Indiana Legislature for constitution to the Indiana Legisl f the United States, and that they ought not | them to the Indiana Legislature for conof the United States, and that they ought not o be counted as such.
