COMMENCEMENT WEEK.

Another University year has rolled off its months and weeks and days, and June has been written down at the end of its record. Another Commencement week, be it said at the end of the college course, is numbered with those that have gone before, and it is our privilege and duty to note a few of the most prominent features and events. The exercises of the week were inaugurated on Sunday, at 4 o'clock p. m., at which hour President Angell gave the Baccalaureate address to a large audience convened in University Hall. Dr. Cooker opened the exercises with Scripture reading and prayer, and the choir was composed of members of the several classes. Dr. Angell's subject was "Knowledge and Wisdom," and in discussing it he clearly defined the distinction between the two. A mass of learned facts constituted knowledge. Wisdom gives the possessor of knowledge the faculty to apply what he has learned, to discern, to discriminate. Wisdom is solid common sense and may exist without great knowledge. Dr. Angell's illustrations of his positions were appropriate. It was one of the President's best efforts.

CLASS DAY. The exercises of Class-Day were held as usual on Tuesday. At 10 o'clock a. m., in University Hall, after music by Prof. Spial's Light Guard Band of Detroit, and prayer by Dr. Cooker, the class orator, Henry C. McDougall, discussed "Shall the Coming Man be an American." The poem of the occasion was recited by W. J. Miller, whose theme was "The Bard's Vision, or a Contest between Love and the Muses." Both oration and poem were attentively listened to and received with favor. The other exercises of Class-Day took place on the campus at 6 o'clock p. m., a floor having been laid and tent erected for the occasion, seated, and lighted by gas. The history was read by George N. Orcutt, of which charity to the writer and class commands the briefest comment. It magnified the lapses and vices of the class, ignored its good deeds—if any, and grossly and unjustly insulted and traduced the President and his associates in the faculty. If the historian and his fellow-class men do not early come to be ashamed of it they have pursued a college course without acquiring the elements of a true manliness. The University can well dispense with such class histories. The prophecy was read by V. J. Tefft, and was modeled after former prophecies. Its hits were better understood by members of the class than by outsiders.

The other exercises consisted of several presentations (in the burlesque way) to distinguished members of the class, a brief farewell address by Joseph S. Ayres, President of the class, etc., concluding with the class song, composed by M. L. Woolsey, of this city, as follows: Classmates, our course is ended, How long we must part, How and sorrow, how and joy, Now bid each loyal heart, Checked the past we've spent— What may the future bring, Low though its bounds be, The fruit we must abide. Then on! Chorus—Loudly ring our parting song, Sound it in hearts, And may fame the name prolong, The name of Seventy-Seven.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION. The annual meeting and exercises of the Alumni Association took place on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The orator was Dr. Edmund Andrews, of Chicago, class of '49. His address was characterized as an excellent one, especially in its discussion of the evils likely to result from the necessity of going to the Legislature for appropriations and the opportunity thus given for legislative intermeddling with purely internal affairs. The speaker also indulged in many pleasing reminiscences of college life. T. B. Chase, the Neurologist, reported following list of deaths, giving a brief sketch of each. Homer F. Schoff, class of 1846, died in Chicago in May 1877. Thomas B. Weir, 1861, died in New York city in December, 1876. Henry S. Cheever, 1862, died in Ann Arbor, March 1877. John B. Root, 1863, died in Rockford, Illinois, November, 1876. Edwin D. Kelley, 1876, died in Burnsh, 1877. Edgar H. Tallman, 1868, died in Ogden, Utah, July, 1876. Julius A. Blackburn, 1870, died in Manchester, Michigan, April, 1876. Rev. Thomas Wylie, 1870, died in Madison, New York, April, 1877. George F. Fox, 1871, died in Vienna, January, 1877. B. G. Rice, 1871, died in Grand Island, Nebraska, May, 1876. C. C. Smith, 1871, died in Pomeroy, Ohio, 1876. W. W. Wilson, 1871, died in Denver, Colorado, D. C. Bedford, E. H. Branch, 1870, died in Santa Barbara, California, January, 1877. L. R. Miller, 1874, died in March, 1876. F. W. Harris, 1875, died in Battle Creek, Michigan, 1877. L. C. Donaldson, 1876, died April, 1877.

THE UNIVERSITY DINNER. The annual University dinner was served at 1 o'clock p. m. in the law lecture room, in Hangster's best style, and was eaten by regents, ex-regents, faculties, alumni, and invited guests, to the number of over three hundred. After the eating was over President Angell made a few welcoming remarks in his happiest vein, and appropriate sentiments were responded to by Hon. C. Trowbridge, of Detroit; Hon. John J. Adams, of Tawas; Hon. Witter J. Baxter, of Jonesville; Hon. Edwin Willis, of Monroe; Dr. Edmund Andrews, of Chicago; and Prof. Stevens, of Adrian College. The exercises were closed by singing the Doxology. THE PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION. In the evening, was largely attended and with very pleasant affair which a reception given by Dr. Angell and lady always is.

JUDGE HILTON, who succeeded, not by purchase but by will, to the management of the estate and business affairs of the late A. T. Stewart, has raised a hornet's nest of very large proportion about his ears, by an order excluding Jews from his hotel as tenants, the Clarendon. The Judge protests that it was not a discrimination against the Jew because of his religion, but that he wished his misdeed at the vulgar or shoddy Jew. Joseph Seligman, banker and of wide connections in banking and business circles, was the first victim of Judge Hilton's order, and his letter to the Judge is a blister plaster of extra size and capacity. As yet Judge Hilton has the worst of the controversy.

THE opposition to the present management of the Michigan Central Railroad flashed in the pan, and the annual election, held on Monday, was a judicious sort of affair. Of the 187,000 shares of capital stock 107,772 were voted upon, and the following candidates for directors received a unanimous vote: Moses Taylor, Samuel Sloan, George F. Talman, John Jacob Astor, Isaac Bell, Rowell G. Rolston, Nathaniel Thayer, Edward Austin, and John V. Barron. The last two are the only new members, taking the place of August Belmont and F. Billings. The report made by Secretary Rolston gave great satisfaction.

AND this order of President Hayes is what makes the average government officer-holder happy: "No assessment for political purposes on officers or subordinates should be allowed. This rule is applicable to every department of the civil service. It should be understood by every officer of the General Government that he is expected to confine his conduct to its requirements." The financial relief this rule will afford officials will fully compensate them for being relieved of "inalienable political rights," by this other clause copied from the same circular order: "No officer shall be required or permitted to take part in the management of political organizations, caucuses, conventions, or election campaigns." Who would not take his ease in office on a fat salary?

THE HON. SAMUEL POST, of Ypsilanti, who writes Pension Agent after his name, has concluded not to follow his model and admired chieftain (Zack Chandler) into private life, but has accepted a renewal of his commission for another term of four years, even at the risk of being charged with indorsing the Southern policy of President Hayes. Well, Sam has been reported a good officer, and as the civil service rules don't require him to be an administration man, we congratulate him on his ability to "hold on to a good thing," which was what the paternal Grant said Ulysses "always would" do.

IN THE Iowa Republican State Convention, held at Des Moines, June 27, the following resolution offered, by an indiscreet member, was read "amid general tumult" and adopted by a three-fourths vote: "Resolved, That the so-called Southern policy which has been inaugurated by the present national administration is in accordance with the principles of the Republican party."

Other resolutions calculated to give this same indorsement showed the same inglorious fate, and the platform adopted gave the President and his friends no consolation.

THE annual meeting and exercises of the Alumni Association took place on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The orator was Dr. Edmund Andrews, of Chicago, class of '49. His address was characterized as an excellent one, especially in its discussion of the evils likely to result from the necessity of going to the Legislature for appropriations and the opportunity thus given for legislative intermeddling with purely internal affairs. The speaker also indulged in many pleasing reminiscences of college life. T. B. Chase, the Neurologist, reported following list of deaths, giving a brief sketch of each. Homer F. Schoff, class of 1846, died in Chicago in May 1877. Thomas B. Weir, 1861, died in New York city in December, 1876. Henry S. Cheever, 1862, died in Ann Arbor, March 1877. John B. ST. JOHN'S CALAMITY.

Detailed Account of the Destruction by Fire of the New Brunswick Metropolitan. Wednesday, the 20th of June, 1877, was the most calamitous day ever known in the annals of St. John, N. B.

ALL SORTS.

FLETCHER HARPER was worth $750,000. He who talks to an oyster will never grow wise. The Venetians used to wear red for mourning.

MEXICO has had twenty revolutions since 1821. CALIFORNIA reports a woman 140 years old. SAN FRANCISCO worries along with 626 laborers.

ARTIFICIAL eyes for horses are a recent invention. THERE are twenty-eight strands in a spider's single thread. FANCY runs most furiously when a guilty conscience drives it.

THE dogs of New York City have paid $20,000 for license this year. THE Suez canal doesn't pay Egypt 1 per cent interest on the investment. In present prices, asparagus yields $200 to $300 per acre, and is moderately profitable to the producer.

NEW YORK city claims as a regular resident Mr. Horace White, formerly editor of the Chicago Tribune. MR. BUCHNER works for the Christian Union at $5,000 per year. He commuted with a salary of $10,000. The Suez canal doesn't pay Egypt 1 per cent interest on the investment.

THE immigration has certainly been immense. JEFFERSON DAVIS, by a recent decision, has secured the title to a Mississippi plantation formerly owned by his brother. CAPT. BOYTON was taken for a seal lion in Rhode Island and fired by some peasants. He promptly hoisted his flag and escaped.

FARMERS in the rural districts of New York make complaint that the tramps steal the hats and coats of the scarecrows they place in their fields. A RIGOROUS Louisiana Judge, in a horse case, ruled out both plaintiff and defendant, before the time of holding service on Sunday, and again for five minutes immediately preceding service-time. At all other times the ringing of church bells, or at least of church bells in fashionable quarters of the city, is adjudged illegal.

YANKEES died at Paris, in the house of Marquise de Villette, on Beaune street and Quay. In conformity with a clause in the will of the Marquise, the windows of the chamber have never been opened since the death of Voltaire. They are to remain closed until the death of the Marquise, which occurs next year. The injunctions of his will have been faithfully observed, even during the Revolution.

AN Advent preacher in Missouri, named Harris, shaved his head so as to acquire the venerable aspect that balances numbers of his personal attractions. He expounded on a charge of deception. He urged that to shave the head was no more an offense than to cut the hair, to trim the beard, or in any other way to improve one's personal appearance. He was watching the "frivolousness" of the world, and he was watching the "frivolousness" of the world, and he was watching the "frivolousness" of the world.

CONTINUED experiments in California show that no matter how dry the season is a good crop of wheat can be grown there if the land lies fallow every other year, and is plowed and sown during the winter, and the land so treated will yield crops of from twenty-five to thirty bushels of wheat to the acre in this year, though only about eight inches of rain have fallen upon it.

SERBIA AND AUSTRIA.

What May Possibly Follow the Declaration of Serbian Independence. The Chicago Tribune, discussing the situation in Europe, says: "It is not possible that a new element will arise in the Eastern complication that may lead to a general war, growing out of the manifest determination of Serbia to follow in the steps of Rumania, and sever her connections with Turkey."

A reporter once gravely stated that the inquest had been held over a child who was found dead in a well. He says a statement that was almost as confusing as the assertion regarding a dead man, "that the places that knew him so long have known him no more ever since."

Another, in describing a "shooting scrape," stated that the wounded man was approached by a Turkish soldier from the rear. "Near the corner of Broadway and Twenty-fifth street," that was as puzzling a problem in phrenology as the anatomical one contained in the statement that Dennis O'Barbery had been "wounded in the forehead near the left shoulder."

Quite recently an evening paper stated that President Hayes went to Senator Sherman's residence on his arrival in Washington, "where a substantial breakfast of the products of Chicago made friends had been prepared for him." A cannibal President is not a very cheerful prospect for the office-seekers. Another paper stated that the new President had privately taken the oath of office in the presence of Chief Justice Waite, President Grant and Mr. Fish, who were absent. Now who were absent or who were present on that occasion must remain a mystery forever.

A police reporter, in concluding his account of a dreadful murder, says that the victim expired before making an ante-mortem statement. Another knight of the pencil, in writing on the ice question, declared that as for the thousand and one cases that go for the thousand and one under the names of the Crystal Ice Company, etc., they have no existence except on the sides of the wagons. Now what they do exist, the carts or the companies, it is impossible to decide.

It is curious to note that the striking funysenences, for a recent strikingists' meeting in this city a medium rose and said "I was prepared to nail every skeptic to the mast-head. Unless I say that no skeptic presented himself for the purpose of making an ante-mortem statement." In writing about an assault, a reporter stated that the assailant was arrested for striking a man who was driving a sleigh with a brick.—Harpur's Magazine for July.

Serfdom in Russia. In 1861, after some years of cautious preparation, Alexander II. proclaimed the emancipation of the serfs, and with one blow the fetters were stricken from 40,000,000 of human beings. Of this number, a little over 20,000,000 were attached to the estates of private proprietors, 1,677,000 were domestic servants, and the remainder belonged to the state demesnes, which cover about one-half the area of Russia. The peasant serfs were immediately freed with the civil rights of free-born men, and were allowed to retain the lands which they already occupied, paying for the use of them certain yearly dues, with the liberty of purchasing them within thirty-nine years. It could not be expected, however, that the serfs would be able to serve their masters in the term of two years after the emancipation, and were thereafter free, but had no share in the communal lands. The peasant serfs, comprising, as has been said, five-sixths of the population, are still regarded as the backbone of the empire, but longer these organizations are destined to survive it is impossible to predict.

The condition of the serfs has not materially improved since the emancipation. The peasant serfs, comprising, as has been said, five-sixths of the population, are still regarded as the backbone of the empire, but longer these organizations are destined to survive it is impossible to predict.
