VOLUME XXXII.

ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, JULY 6, 1877.

NUMBER 1642.

ON A NAUGHTY LITTLE BOY SLEEPING.

Just now I missed from bed and still I'm not asleep, I had gone to bed as I do to bed as that grave tone.

And little footle on the floor, And little footle on the floor, And little footle on the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

And then I found him there, He lay upon the floor, He lay upon the floor.

THE NEZ PERCES INDIANS.

Causes of the Trouble in Idaho—The Indians and Their Home—A Charming Spot.

The Nez Perces Indians occupy a timber, hunting, tillage and grazing lands, even for an Indian reserve, which is generally well watered, fertile and fertile region owned by the Government.

It is situated in Idaho, between and embracing the Clearwater and Salmon rivers. The reservation is surrounded by Indians which cherish an ancient hatred of the Nez Perces, who a few years ago vanquished the crowing Sioux, and effectually kept at a respectful distance the Flatheads, Snakes or Shoshones, and the formidable Blackfoot and Crow, not to mention other smaller tribes.

One of the causes for hatred given by the Nez Perces, occurred many years since. Those who have read Washington Irving's entertaining narrative, "The Red Rover," will remember that the main part of the story is the story of the Nez Perces, who were driven from their homes by the white men.

They were driven from their homes by the white men, and they were driven from their homes by the white men.

They were driven from their homes by the white men, and they were driven from their homes by the white men.

They were driven from their homes by the white men, and they were driven from their homes by the white men.

GRASSHOPPERS.

Billions of Them in the Yellowstone Country—An Old Vet's Story of What He Saw.

Arthur Templeton, a disabled, debilitated, worn-out soldier, who has been tramping around for several years past, arrived in Chicago Saturday evening from Tongue river, with his discharges papers in his pocket.

He says he was obliged to give the soldiers, which possessed a peculiar fascination for him; but he was so broken down in health that his services were no longer of any account to Uncle Sam, and his discharge followed as a matter of course.

He was in the field all through the campaign of last year, but participated in no fighting of any account, though he was at the scene of the Custer massacre after its occurrence, and saw the bodies of the slain lying in the valley.

Mr. Templeton tells a grasshopper story which smacks, at first blush, of the incredible, but which must nevertheless be true, since a man who had served his country in the field, and who had seen the battle of the Little Bighorn, could hardly have acquired the habit of lying so soon after quitting the army.

According to his account, the country south of the Yellowstone river is literally black with young grasshoppers. One other, named the Big Horn mountains is where they swarm the thickest.

A detachment of cavalry belonging to Gen. Miles' command recently traveled for three days through the territory, and on the first day they were met by a flock of grasshoppers.

The whole surface of the country looked like one huge grasshopper, so innumerable were the pests. They covered all the rocks, every tree, from the roots to the topmost branches, was black with them.

They were so thick that they were almost impossible to see, and they were so thick that they were almost impossible to see.

They were so thick that they were almost impossible to see, and they were so thick that they were almost impossible to see.

They were so thick that they were almost impossible to see, and they were so thick that they were almost impossible to see.

They were so thick that they were almost impossible to see, and they were so thick that they were almost impossible to see.

They were so thick that they were almost impossible to see, and they were so thick that they were almost impossible to see.

They were so thick that they were almost impossible to see, and they were so thick that they were almost impossible to see.

ABOUT THE HOUSE.

Washing Carpets.—The housekeepers may be relieved of a table-spoonful of ammonia in one gallon of warm water will restore the color of carpets.

Lamp Smoke.—To prevent the smoking of a lamp, soak the wick in strong vinegar and dry it well before using.

How to Wash Lace.—To wash lace and make it look as good as new, dissolve some salts of tartar in hot water, and allow the lace to lie in it for an hour or so, then take it out, squeeze it dry, and clean it as usual.

How to Use Lard.—Lard for pastry may be used as hard as it can be cut with a knife, and will make far better paste than if left to stand warm.

To Take Wrinkles Out of Silk.—If silk stockings or handkerchiefs have become wrinkled, moisten, wet them, evenly with a sponge dipped in a weak solution of glue; then pin the article, smoothly and tightly stretched, upon a screen or a mattress.

Cold Meats.—Cut any sort of cold meat in thin slices, and place in a baking dish, seasoning with salt, pepper, and a little of the most savory and tomatoes to more than cover; thickening with bread or cracker crumb; bake in the oven.

To Boil Potatoes.—Let the potatoes be of a size; do not put them in the pot until the water boils; when done, pour off the water and remove the cover until all the steam has escaped; then add a little salt and a teaspoonful of butter.

Boiling Beets.—With many housewives there is a great deal of boiling of beets, and the result is a very unpalatable mess. To avoid this, wash the roots carefully, so as to avoid all abrasion of the skin.

Chimes in St. Mark's Church.—Philadelphia, the ringing of which the neighbors are annoyed by, is the result of an injunction, may now be rung for five minutes on every Sunday, under a modification of the injunction.

Coal Mining is becoming quite an important industry in Alabama. From a yield of 6,000 tons in 1873, the product of her mines grew to 55,000 tons in 1876.

A Cat Churns a Snake.—Mr. J. H. Mann, of Osseo, has a tom cat known by the name of Tom. He was observed by one of the neighbors capering and purring around something in the garden.

— We call attention to the 16th semi-annual statement of the Ann Arbor Savings Bank. The bank is popular, has the confidence of the people, and is doing a large business.

— The turn out at Ypsilanti yesterday, by the Red Ribbon boys, was very large. R. E. Frazier, Esq., of this city, made an effective speech—having previously taken the pledge as to a vast amount of good. Hon. C. Joslin also made a fine speech.

— The Red Ribbon Picnic on the Island yesterday was a grand success. The attendance was large and all enjoyed themselves hugely. There was music, eating, speaking, making by J. Q. A. Sessions, Dr. Haskell, J. W. Wing, Rev. W. H. Ryder, Rev. Thomas Holmes, Noah W. Cheever, and President Schumacher, and after that dancing until late in the evening.

— The report of the Ann Arbor Savings Bank made July 2 shows a deposit account of $123,243.43. — During the year ending December 31, 1876, thirty persons were sent from this county to the Detroit House of Correction.
