NUMBER 1704.

THE THREE COFFINS. Three coffins await their final repose In the ancient cloister's keeping, And a brief hour hence the lids will close On the forms beneath them sleeping.

The first is a King who hath ruled the land,

The next is a chief from the battle-field. Wounded and bronzed and hoary;
By his side are resting his sword and shield,
The emblems of martial glory.

With no state pomp attended; The lay of his lyre hath sounded long Through the aisles—but now is ended.

Hark! what is that at the postern gate Like the roar of distant water? Tis the foe, with bounding hopes elate, Returned to the work of slaughter!

Ho! chief, awake! to the tents repair— In the van lead on thy legions!" hey listen, but ail is silent there, Still and hushed as the Polar regions.

From the poet's coffin a sigh is heard, And the lyre at his bare feet laying Starts into life, like the trill of a bird Whose melody knows no staying,

When the sun goes down in a radiant glow. With molten clouds attendant, The three nailed coffins are now laid low— The cross is in the ascendant!

ROMANCE OF A POSTAGE-STAMP.

York, one letter turned up and sent a fealous shock through me thet set my heart throbbing and my brain swimming with a sudden dizziness. I might have expected so have seen it, but not the less did it affect me when I did see it—"Lossyh Morris India dek did see it-"Joseph Morris, India dock, sion. New York." That was the address, and I knew that it was his. I had a dear little note in that same handwriting next ing, selfishly hopeful feelings that were to my heart then—a few graceful words thanking me for a book I had sent her a little note that I had read over count- at last, after an hour's temptation, I took less times, and kissed as often, wonder- that letter from its resting place, subing would it displease her to know how fondly I cherished it. I thrust the hateful letter out of my sight, and, leaning my head on the table, lived over again the hopes, the fears, the wretchedness of the last twenty-four hours. The day before, while distributing the mail matter, I came across a letter adlearned that, through the generosity of income! And how before my good fort-une I had thought of Annie Merrill as separated away from me by my poor circumstances, my salary barely supporting my mother and myself, and how could I ask any woman to share my pov-erty! Now that the burden of poverty was most unexpectedly lifted from me, I felt at liberty to tell her the hopes I never dared to entertain till now. would her answer be? That I would learn that very night. In the same mail with my letter was one addressed to her, postmarked New York. Her correbut I had never seen that writing be-

But this letter was eager, happy expectation in her look that the first that had come to her since she came orphaned from the great city a "I am glad to see you," she said, giving year before, and had been received into me her hand. "I have been impatient came orphaned from the great city a her uncle's heart and home. But other thoughts put the question of the letter why. There is a question I want you to out of my mind. I sent, by a messenger, a few hurried lines to my mother, to I think I can look to you for its solution. prepare her for our good fortune, and then counted the hours that would pass carly part of the week?" before I could offer my inheritance to Annie, encumbered with its possessor.

When I reached home I found her there before me. My mother, who had taken I saw her face flush. She went on. before me. My mother, who had taken her into her favor from the first, her sweetness and orphaned situation proving a passport to her heart, had sent for This Bank, already having a large business, invite merchants and others to open accounts with them, with the assurance of the most liberal dealing and there was a troubled look in her blue eyes I never saw there before. the happy change in my prospects, but no one could be more sincere in their ongratulations than herself. I answered that my good fortune would be valueless to me unless I could share it with the girl I loved.

"The girl you love?" she repeated, I felt her hand tremble on my arm. "The girl I love," I answered, in tones that she might have interpreted,

"She ought to be a happy woman, she continued. "May I ask if I know "If you know her?" I cried. "If

And then I saw the moonlight falling n her face, and it was not the face of a girl shining with happy confusion when she hears the story of his love from the man whom she prefers. It was pale and shocked, and then she hid it from me in her hands and burst into tears. I needed no other answer. I knew my suit was hopeless.

Hopeless as I felt, the prospect of seeing Annie again premised me only a painful pleasure, but still the thought of being near her had a sweet and sad fascination that I could not resist. When I reached the doctor's, I found himself and my mother seated in his office, so pondence all passed through my hands, intent on the moves of a knight's gamfore. Sagacity of Animals Overrated. It is next to impossible to shake the public faith in the value of the observations of the lower creation. We know by experience that our barn-door fowls will with ir finite composure retire to rest at 10 o'clock in the morning in case of an eclipse, yet that knowledge does not prevent the public from assuming the possession by birds of mysterious sources of information on the subject of weather which are sealed to us. An open car weighing 1 ton 1,700 will carry 5 tons 1,600 pounds, A closed car, weighing 2 tons 100 pounds, will carry 5 tons 900 pounds, so that in crrrying 350 tons, 242 would be freight and 108 dead weight. The difference in weight, capacity, and cost between eight-wheeled cars for a four-feet-eightinch and a three-feet-six-inch gauge is as follows: Three feet, weight, 8,800 pounds; capacity, 17,600; cost, $558. Four feet eight inches, weight 19,000; capacity in full, 18,000; cost, $735. Platform three feet gauge, weight, 6,250; capacity, 19,000; cost, $350. For four feet eight and a half inches gauge, weight, 18,000, capacity, 18,000; cost, $575. For gondola three feet gauge, weight, 7,250; capacity, 18,000; cost, $385. For four feet eight and a half inches gauge, weight, 18,500; cost, $625. These estimates are taken from actual working weight on cars on the him more than half way, she, stopping Pennsylvania road, as compared with the Denver and Rio Grande narrow

> The saving in dead-weight, on the narrow gauge, in cars to carry 100 tons is 103,000 pounds. The most expert and experienced engineers give the result as averaging on a three-feet track two and eight-tenths of paying freight to one ton of dead weight, and it is not contended that on a four-feet-eight-inch track the capacity to carry freight is beyond the dead-weight. This is the result of actual and prolonged experiments. The difference is demonstrated by the operations of two representative roads. On the London and Northwestern, wide gauge, a freight train, weighing with freight, 250 tons, is made up of 50 tons of freight to 200 tons of deadweight. On the Imperial Livny Russian, narrow gauge, a train weighing 354 tons is made to carry 260 tons of freight and 94 tons of dead-weight. To carry this 260 tons of freight, the wide garage requires as an average 1,040 toas of carriages. As 94 tons is to 1,040, so is the difference between the two systems, This brings me to THE INCREASED POWER TO CARRY FREIGHT.

Actual statistics show that the fourfeet-eight-inch gauge uses four tons of gineer of New York, made up from the white goods is Java water. Get, say, 10 working tables of the various wide-cents worth, lay your garment on a

000,000 tons, to 20,000,000 tons on a three-feet track, to carry the same amount of freight. The ratio then is 20 to 50 in favor of the narrow gauge. So, too, the wear and tear, as the train is drawn faster than ten miles an hour, is increased in the exact ratio of the increase of speed. The principles which determine these results are too plain to require further elucidation, and I proceed to the matter of

DECREASED RUNNING EXPENSES. The expenses of running a railroad are measured generally, first, by the cost of construction and equipment, and second by the passengers and freight it carries. The cost of rolling-stock between the three-feet and the four-feeteight-inch track is as 21 is to 32, and the structure as 20 is to 30. pacity as 28-10 is to 1, so that the cost of running a narrow gauge would be less than one-half the cost of running a wide gauge.

PRESIDENT HAYES was accorded an enthusiastic reception at the Minnesota State Fair, in St. Paul. He delivered a lengthy speech to an audience of 50,000 people. The speech consisted largely of tabular statements showing the reduction of the public debt, the decreased rates of taxation since the war, the condition of the currency, etc. He concluded as follows:

condition of the currency, etc. He concluded as follows:

Now, my friends, with this picture, as I think, so full of hope for the future for you and I as individuals. I do not venture with confidence upon predictions of prosperity reviving. I have no spirit of prophecy, but, reasoning, let us see how it stands. The debt is a great burden upon labor and capital. It is greatly diminished, and is still diminishing. Taxation is a great burden upon labor and capital, avd it is greatly diminished and still diminishing. So, too, as to the expenses of the Government; and then with that which helps us, a sound currency coming, and immigration coming, may I not confidently say that these are indications, at least, that we are marching to the threshold of reviving general business prosperity? And now shall we look around for a new way to pay old debts, or shall we march in the paths marked out by the fathers—of industry, of economy? Shall we do what Washington and Franklin would advise? That is the question before the people to-day, my friends. I enter upon no argument on a disputed question, but I say, as my opinion—we may be mistaken all of us, but I believe it—that a restored financial condition depends largely upon an honest currency, and I say this: The commerce of the world is the commerce now inwhich we are taking part, and that is the same thing the globe around.

At New Orleans the plague was on the increase, so far as the number of new cases was concerned, though the mortality was not so great, only 36 deaths being reported for the twenty-four hours. We know nothing of what the outside world is doing, nor do we care. Doctors, nurses, drugs, sick-rooms, coffins, graves, engross our attention by their petrifyring monotony of occurrence." At New Orleans 201 new cases and eighty-six deaths were reported on the 5th. Grantism Revised-A Spectacle for Ke-

[From the New York Sun.] The old party machine, with which the country was so familiar during the era of Grantism, has been furbished, Washington, driven by experienced hands, and run in the well-marked ruts suppress Indian raiding, and if possible capture the leaders.

President Diaz has issued two decrees Chandler, and Don Hamilton Fish, and for the suppression of smuggling on the Reformer Jewell, and the rest of them used during the days of Grant, when Postmaster Edmunds was Secretary of the Congressional Committee, and blackmailing was a recognized feature in party management. Lists have been world. The process of bringing this furnished from every department of the about may be slower and more difficult names of all persons employed therein, than that of legislating prosperity by male and female, and a circular fixing issues of "fiat money," but it is desthe exact sum required, graded by salary, is delivered by a hired collector, whose activity is stimulated by a commission on the sums he pays over to the committee. Mr. Schurz has formally declared that his subordinates may do what they please with their spare money, which simply means they are expected to answer the call of the managers, and civil-service reform will be helped by liberal subscriptions to the campaign

John Sherman has made an example or a promissory note?" in his department, which is intended as a notice to the many thousands employed in the treasury that they must either pay the assessments or give up their places to others who will submit to the imposition. Mr. Hugh Waddell was invited to take an office under the Sixth Auditor as an expert accountant, penvited to take an office under the Sixth Auditor as an expert accountant, penman, and man of business. B. Hawley. This same John Sherman proposes to reform the Custom House here in the same way.

Public notice has been given by the party organs in Indiana that R. W. Thompson, now yachting at the public expense after the manner of Secor Robeson; A. G. Porter, Comptroller of the Treasury, and J. N. Tyner, First Assistant Postmaster General—as a political legacy of the late Senator Morton—are to open the campaign in that State, and to spread themselves over many countheir duties at the coming election this 39.94 fall, when a new Legislature is to be chosen, and a Senator depends upon the result. This programme is intended, of course, to illustrate Hayes' order of June 22, 1877, in these words: "No officer should be required or permitted 1,076,135.00 to take part in the management of political organizations, caucuses, conventions

FIAT MONEY.

[From the New York Graphic,] Now let us frankly acknowledge that if it could be once an accepted fact that the purchasing power of the money in use by this nation would be diminished by the addition of a limited or an unlimited amount of greenbacks, business at the moment would revive. And why? Because everyone would be desirous of parting to-day with "money" which would be less valuable to-morrow. All kinds of trade would be brisk, real estate would be bought and sold; so would live stock, raw products, evidences of indebtedness, like bonds and stock, manufactured articles, objects of fine art, and so on. The desire to spend money that would have a constantly decreasing value would then give a much greater impetus to extravagance than constantly rising in value now gives to This may be frankly acknowledged. But would prosperity of this kind be permanent? The history of our own past shows that it would not. The rising tide of 1865 and subsequent years was followed by the low tide of 1873 and the following years. The action would be followed by as great a reaction.

But is it true that there is not money But is it true that there is not money enough in the country to meet the wants of trade? Are we suffering because the laws of Congress do not now provide currency enough? Let us see how this is. This week's Public gives a valuable United States notes, not bearing interest, payable to bearer at the treasury of the United States." An Unauswerable Answer to the Question. [From the Chicago Times.]

The following request comes from peace for fifty-three years. Whitehall, Mich: "Will you please inform a number of young readers what is a dollar, what makes it a dollar, and the war. whether a greenback dollar is a dollar

The word dollar is the name of something. That something is what the law declares it shall be. At present the law declares that that something shall be a coin of silver weighing 4121 grains and

He refused to pay the ar-bitrary assessment, was reported for or anything else as well as dollar. Calling a thing a dollar does not change its value any more than calling a sheep's tail a leg makes it a leg. The law might call a silver coin of 100 grains a dollar, but that would not make it of equal value with a silver coin of 4124 grains. Augusta, Ga., has completely driven out value with a silver coin of 412½ grains. The law might call a slip of paper a dollar, as our "flat"-money philosophers propose that it shall, but that would not make the slip of paper worth as much as a gold coin weighing 25.8 grains. The law can make the slip of paper as efficient as the gold coin in paying debts, but it cannot make the former equal in value to the latter, or, indeed, give it any commercial value whatever. Hon. G. A. Grow put the matter very clearly in

The question, what makes a thing a dollar, is already answered. It is the law. That is, the law declares to what of milk and withdraw it immediately in thing the name dollar shall be given, an upright position. If the milk be but it does not thereby impart any real pure some of it will hang to the needle, Is a greenback dollar a dollar, or a promissory note? The law answers that question. What we call greenbacks are invariably called "United States notes" in all the acts of Congress in which they ing them provides for the issue of "$150,000,000 of United States notes, not bearing interest, payable to the bearer at the treasury of the United States." It also provides for the conversion of these notes, "payable to bearer," into 6 per cent. bonds, "redeemable at the pleasure of the United lemma taken for a funeral procession, were asked to point out the corpse.

There is still another point—against fiat money. The money of the constitution is assuredly gold and silver. No one can have studied with attention the views of the tounders of our Government without concluding that paper money was their aversion, and that they money was their aversion, and that they money was their aversion, and that they old Confederation. All constitutions, and notably the constitution of the United States, are intended to preserve and perpetuate property.

A constitution that would aim at destroying property would be a novelty.

The courts have repeatedly decided that the greenbacks are notes to be paid. In the case of Bank vs. Supervisors, reported in 7 Wallace, the Supreme Court of the United States declared: "It is clear that these notes are obligations of the United States. Their name imports obligation, and every one of them bears on its face a promise to pay a certain sum. The dollar note is a promise to pay a certain weight and fineness of gold and silver." In the opinion of the court in the legal-tender cases, decided in 1871, Justice Strong says: "The legal-tender acts do not attempt to make paper a standard of value. We do not rest their validity upon the assertion that their validity upon the assertion that
