VOLUME XXXIII. ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1878. NUMBER 1708.

A HUNDRED YEARS FROM NOW. The sunning sea of human life forever onward... At last she was in the open thoroughfare...

At last she was in the open thoroughfare, and looked about her. Right opposite was a window full of watches and jewelry and above hung three gilt balls.

That must be the place," murmured Bertha. With an aching heart she drew a ring from her finger. "It was a beautiful ring—a circlet of very large and pure rubies. They flashed like sparks of fire in the sunlight as the girl drew it from her hand.

That blessed rain. "Oh, yes," said the doctor, rising at last from his patient. "I was meaning to see you certainly."

At last she was in the open thoroughfare, and looked about her. Right opposite was a window full of watches and jewelry and above hung three gilt balls.

Suddenly the cool, blonde face flushed. "That circlet of rubies—will you let me see it?" The man permitted.

"I once owned this ring. Will you tell me who brought it here?" "It is not stolen, eh?" cried the old pawnbroker.

"Oh, no. I shall not claim or take it unless I pay you for it. But I should like to know who brought it here."

Henry was trembling, though he made an effort to conceal it. "The man who brought it is a very nice ring."

"It is a very nice one, as you say. The young lady did not care for the ring. I presume she had it made."

"Perhaps she did, though. She had been crying, I remember. She was in trouble, I thought. I often see people in trouble, sir."

"Do you know her name?" "Yes. Miss Bertha Farley, No. 870 A street."

"What is the price of this ring?" "You may have it for $50. It is worth twice the money, sir."

"Henry did not speak again. He paid for the ring and left the establishment."

Half an hour later, Bertha, sad, pale, and weary, opened the door to a handsome and prosperous young gentleman.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY. WALKED UP TO THE RASCAL and banged him on the head with the handle. He dropped dead.

TO PRESERVE THE HAIR.—Wash it in cold sage tea.

LINIMENT.—A good liniment for cuts, bruises, etc., can be made by soaking common mayweed leaves in alcohol.

FRIED BANANAS.—Peel and slice the bananas, sprinkle with salt, dip in thin batter, and fry in butter; serve immediately.

HAM PIE.—Pick the ham into small, fine pieces, beat a cup of rice, beat up two eggs and stir in with the ham and rice, season with pepper, salt and onions...

A SHAVING SOAP.—A nice shaving soap can be made by taking four and half pounds of white bar soap, one quart rain-water, one gill bees' gall, and one gill spirits of turpentine.

MOCK MINCE PIES.—A pie for summer use, which closely resembles a mince pie, is made by mixing one cup of sugar, one cup molasses, one cup and half cups bread crumbs, with one cup of cold vinegar, four cups of water, and three eggs...

PEACH STAINS.—The only thing that will remove peach stains from white goods is Java water. Get, say, 10 cents' worth, lay your garment on a crochery cushion, and dip it in the water...

TO PRESERVE EGGS.—Put some lime in a large vessel and soak it with boiling water until of the consistency of thin cream; you may use a gallon of water to a pound of lime...

TO EXTERMINATE FLEAS.—Take half a pound of Persian insect powder, half a pound powdered borax, one ounce oil cedar, quarter ounce oil pennyroyal, properly put into a druggist's close the room tight, sprinkle this powder on carpets, beds, chairs, sofas, and corners...

IRISH STEW.—Cut two pounds of the neck of a beef in pieces about two inches square, boil in water with salt and pepper, and add one quart of potatoes, one quart of peas, and one quart of carrots...

FAVORITE MEAT PIE.—Take cold roast beef, or roast meat of any kind, slice it thin, cut rather small, and lay it, wet with gravy and sufficiently peppered and salted, in a meat-pie dish. If liked, a small onion may be chopped up and sprinkled over it.

SOFT SOAP.—Clean the fat by boiling with soap and water and straining; dissolve four pounds of potash in one pail of water; after the potash is dissolved add six and one-quarter pounds grease; either boil it until it is compounded, or let it stand a few days and it will do itself; when it is sufficiently mixed, by adding a little water it will thicken; if the mixture has not been boiled or left standing long enough it will turn soft by adding the water; when it will bear the water test add cold water enough to make it a thick jelly and good soap.

GLASS STOPPERS.—Sometimes the ground-glass stoppers of bottles become fixed in the neck, and cannot be removed by pulling or twisting. An effectual method is to wrap a rag wet with hot water around the neck and let it remain a few seconds. The heat will expand the neck of the bottle, when the stopper can be removed as of itself.

A Medical Dialogue. Examiner.—Now, suppose you were called in to attend a patient who was in a dry and burning fever, whom it was your duty to bleed, and you were asked what would you do to make him sweat?

Medical Student.—"Employ sudorifics; aromatic stimulants; tea, coffee." Examiner.—"And if that didn't make him sweat?"

M. S.—"Then I'd have recourse to blisters, and if that didn't do it, I'd have recourse to..."

M. S.—"Send him here to pass an examination."

Looking-Glasses in Rat-Traps. A correspondent writes: "I do not think it is generally known that rats and mice will go into a trap much more readily if a piece of looking-glass is put in any part of the trap where they can see their shadows. They are social little creatures, and where they are seen they are sure of their tribe they will go. I am quite sure of the effect the looking-glass has, as I properly baited my trap for a whole week without being able to coax one of the depredators in; but the first night after putting in the looking-glass I caught two—one very large and one small rat—and every night since the device has made one or more prisoners."

HELEN TRACY, playing the heroine in "The Gilded Age," in Cincinnati, tried to shoot the villain, but the pistol wouldn't shoot. The predicament was rapidly superseding itself for stray wear.—New York Tribune.

Col. DILLS, Republican candidate for Congress in the Ninth Kentucky district, owns 35,000 acres of mountain land thereabouts, which reminds a local paper of the protest of a native against the sympathy of a tourist: "Look here, stranger, I ain't no darned poor as you the depredators in; but the first night after putting in the looking-glass I caught two—one very large and one small rat—and every night since the device has made one or more prisoners."

IN 1836 there were 12,897,638 sheep in the United States; in 1878, 34,740,500. It is estimated that there are in the world 484,000,000 of these animals.
